NB. Last season I seem to have omitted one of Italy's builds - Ian should have built A(Ven) and A(Rom). Luckily it doesn't make any difference to anyone. Sorry.

Press

Rome-Moscow and Berlin in particular: Good heavens! My God! (or if you're Batman, Holy Cow!).

The extent to which you two are prepared to outwit me never ceases to amaze. You shouldn't send letters to the "master of forgery". First of all I would like to point out that the letter should have been an open letter to France, Germany and Turkey, not Russia. Secondly the moves your imagination invented, Martin, could hardly be described as subtle. Thirdly Norman usually puts the date on his letters and he does not type them. ((correction - I've received typed letters from Norman.)) Fourthly Norman does not write in such an overpowering manner, or does he? Finally your attempt to forge his signature was hopeless, I've seen my brother do better and that's saying something. Incidentally I don't like letters littering up my room, so I'll send it to Norman and ask him what he thinks of your pathetic attempt.

Berlin-Russia: I couldn't read your typing, sorry!

England-Russia: Why didn't I get a copy?

Rome-Moscow: I hope your puppets are still dancing.

Rome-Moscow: Interesting idea, sending your puppets all those orders. Fity it won't work.

Rome-Moscow: Let's make up. 17-17 is a fair result.

Moscow-Rome: They are all glove puppets.

Rome-Constantinople: Hello!

London-Moscow: Death before dishonour.

Rome-Paris: I hope I haven't offended you.

Turkey-Russia: I'm always open to suggestions.

Rome-London: Keep up the good work Keith.
